FIREMEN BUSY ON GRASS AND WOODS FIRES THIS WEEK

The fire department was called Monday afternoon to fight a blaze in the pines below Riverside Cemetery which had apparently started from the Corporation dump nearby. When the pumper arrived the booster tank's capacity was insufficient, although it was refilled once or twice. The apparatus was then taken to a low spot on the river bank where it was possible for the suction hose to reach the river and three lines of hose soon extinguished the fire. The damage was confined to the south side of the road.

Wednesday morning the department made quick work of a grass fire which was spreading near the site of the E. E. Bennett buildings in Mayville which burned three years ago. The fire was of unknown origin and in a short time would have been in the woods and difficult to fight.

A small blaze was discovered Wednesday afternoon near Cobblestone Farm by a passerby who notified the fire department after he had made a brief but losing fight.

This proved the toughest assignment of the kind this spring, as the damage covered some three acres and destroyed several cords of stove wood belonging to Mrs. Edith Grover. Much more wood was badly damaged, but a considerable quantity was saved from loss. Water was pumped from a small brook which was dammed near the scene and four streams were poured on the blaze for several hours. The cause of the fire is not known.

Two U. S. fishing vessels collided and sank off the coast of Nova Scotia last Thursday; nine were rescued and 37 reported missing.

GOULD DROPS FIRST GAME TO FRYEBURG 8-3

Fryeburg enjoyed one big inning, scoring seven runs, to hand Gould their first set-back of the current season. They put together a combination of six hits, two bases on balls, and a hit batsman to score in this inning. Once in the lead the play of the entire Fryeburg team improved and the local boys were completely stopped for the rest of the game.

Gould scored in the first inning when Brown hit a terrific single through the second baseman and when the center fielder also missed the ball it rolled to the woods while he circled the bases. Leading off in the fourth, Tucker clouted a long home run to right field. This was a long fly which the right fielder thought he had but the wind got hold of it and carried it ten feet beyond him. Also in this inning after Young had fanned Clough reached on an error and scored on R. Crockett's single.

Fryeburg comes here Saturday for a return game and the outcome of the league standing depends to a great extent on this game. The locals will have to hit the left-handed pitcher better than they did there and will have to hit to someone else as this pitcher did an excellent job of fielding his position in this game.

TWO ACCIDENTS LAST WEEK AT FOOT OF CHURCH STREET

On Wednesday afternoon of last week cars driven by B. W. Cote of Augusta and Laurice Morrill of Mason were in a collision at the Junction of Church and Railroad Streets. The Morrill car was entering the intersection from Mayville and Cote was coming from the direction of West Bethel. No one was injured although it is said that Cote's car turned around twice before it backed off the road to the railroad fence. The damages were confined to headlamps, fenders and a running board. The accident was investigated by State Highway Officer John Maguire of Bethel.

That morning at the same point a Massachusetts car coming over the overhead bridge collided with a truck driven by Arthur Gilbert, coming from West Bethel. The front of the car was badly damaged but no injuries were reported.

LAKE BIDS FAREWELL TO COUNTY POULTRY ASS'N

At the last meeting of the Oxford County Poultry Improvement Association the president, Merton Lake, bid farewell to the group. Mr. Lake is moving to Pennsylvania. In his talk before the members, he reminisced for a while, calling attention to things that had taken place during the three years' existence of the association. He then looked into the future, making several suggestions for the good of the association and for poultrymen themselves. He suggested in particular that poultrymen try to adopt the ideas that speakers before the association presented and put them to work on their farms. At the close of Mr. Lake's talk, he was presented with a box of cigars after which refreshments were enjoyed.

Vice-president, Berkeley Henley of Waterford, will serve as president for the remainder of the year, and Warren Knightly of Norway was elected vice-president.

"THEY TELL ME"

We are all the time hearing a lot nowadays about propaganda, which is always something the other fellow is up to and we don't agree with. If and when we begin to believe it it becomes the gospel truth,
and it isn't propaganda any more.
It seems pretty funny and sometimes kind of pitiful the way people bite for somebody else's pet peevish or hobby and get all hot up over it. They may be down on Hitler or the Jews, or the new deal, or old age pensions, or again they may favor all these and besides wax considerable militant for improved parking regulations in the village or something else. If they would back off to one side and take a look at themselves they might see how lopsided they get when they get all to pieces over just one or two things and perhaps they wouldn't be so ready to believe everything they hear. The funny thing about propaganda is the awful waste of time it makes. You would think it would be a pretty slow job to pass the story along from mouth to ear, but the way it goes it gets sandwiched in with the choicest gossip and travels like lightning all over town or the whole country. But it still takes a lot more time than it is worth, because so much of it isn't really so. If they would only stop and think before passing it along they would see it's misleading, same as most gossip is anyway.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

LANDSCAPE PICTURES

Small, pleasing bits of landscape usually make better pictures than open, distant views. Include a nearby object when possible.

LANDSCAPES are a source of excellent snapshots which will add appeal to any album, and they can be made easily with the simplest cameras.

Many beginners try to include too much in their landscape pictures. A better method is to seek out small, pleasing bits—a single tree overhanging a brook, a quiet country road winding over a hilltop. The broad, open views which first attract our eyes are not as desirable for picture purposes, as simple bits which can easily be "composed" into attractively arranged pictures.

A good practice, in seeking landscape pictures, is to "frame" a scene with your hands while you study its picture possibilities. The camera lens has a narrower "angle of view" than our eyes—it does not take in as much territory—so this trick of "framing" helps us judge better
what the camera will include.

In arranging a landscape picture,
avoid lines that divide the picture into equal parts, either vertically or horizontally. Large areas, such as open sky, should usually be broken up by detail—clouds, or a graceful tree branch. A color filter on the camera lens helps record clouds.
"Balance" should also be sought. For example, if a large mass of trees is shown in the right-hand foreground, they may be balanced by a smaller mass on the left—a figure or two, or a distant house and trees.

Seeking landscape pictures is a pleasant pastime, and a phase of your camera hobby well worth cultivating. Good pictures of this type can be made at any season—and the better ones can be enlarged and framed for use as decorations in the home. Begin your landscape album now.

BARROWS FOR SENATE, IF HALE STILL REFUSES RETURN

To My Fellow Citizens of Maine:

In further reference to the statement made to the Eighty-Ninth Legislature on the eve of adjournment, I desire to announce to the citizens of Maine my ambition to represent my native state in the United States Senate.

To attain that ambition I shall be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the next primary election. I therefore solicit the support of those members of the party who feel me worthy of their continued endorsement. In order to attain success I shall be forced to depend upon my own efforts and the voluntary efforts of loyal friends.

The State of Maine has long been most fortunate in its representation in the United States Senate and I believe it is to be highly regretted that Senator Frederick Hale has once again announced his intention not to again seek reelection. I hope he may be persuaded to reconsider his decision. Should he make such an announcement, I am ready to render such support to him as is within my power. Length of service in the Senate, or seniority, is most essential to better assignments to Senate committees provided that service has been in that particular branch.

I therefore recognize that Senator Hale's years of splendid service should entitle him to the united support of the Republicans of Maine should he desire to continue.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

HIGH-PRESSURE SALESMANSHIP

A SALESMAN, 10 years ago unscrupulous but successful, came in to see me today with his troubles. He no longer makes sales. I asked him what he thought was the matter.

"That's just it," said he. "I don't know. I give 'em the works—but they don't buy."

This man is a salesman of the old school—a worshipper at the shrine of high pressure salesmanship. His methods no longer make sales. He thinks he's losing his grip.

That is not the trouble. The truth is that high-pressure salesmanship is out, is dead, is obsolete, is without power to make sales in these days of greater education.

People haven't changed, but they have become better educated in the higher education of taking care of themselves and their money. The process which brought about this education is newspaper advertising.

It used to be possible for a glib talker to take almost anything out to sell, no matter how worthless or inferior, and by sheer high-pressure selling to "clean up." But not now.

Even the lowliest buyer knows that certain claims are untrue, and that the price asked for certain items is excessive. These things he knows because advertising has refuge against false claims, today so.

The average customer today is much better informed than even professional buyers were 20 years ago.

The housewife knows which foods contain vitamins, which contain vegetable oils, which contain expensive ingredients and the like. She knows the effect of this or that product.

She is never, therefore, at the mercy of the high pressure artist who seeks to rob her by giving her less than others and charging more for it.

Advertising in the newspapers, which she consults regularly, has built into her life an expert knowledge of values and prices and qualities. These make her an extraordinarily well informed person.

He who would sell the average customer must come with good value, a fair price and high quality. Otherwise he won't get even a hearing, because we have something now with which to compare unknown or new goods—and we are quick to reject those that do not measure up.

Much more than a selling aid for business is advertising. It is an educational system which is making Americans the best-educated buyers in the world. It is an economic system which is giving Americans more for their money every day.

NEW YORK FAIR BRINGS VISITORS TO MAINE

Officials of the Maine Development Commission at Augusta seized upon Herbert Becker, of Marietta, Ohio, and named him as the first person to visit Maine as the result of the state's participation in the New York World's Fair.

Becker, accompanied by his wife and young daughter, dropped in to the Commission's State House offices to obtain information about fishing conditions.

Subsequent conversation revealed that the family had left Ohio to see the Fair but after spending only two days there had succumbed to the lure of Maine as portrayed by the State's exhibit and decided to spend the remainder of their vacation period here fishing.

As "the first" of what Commission officials believe will be a steady stream of visitors who will be induced to come here in the same manner, the Becker family was introduced to Governor Lewis O. Barrows and received the chief executive's best wishes for a pleasant visit here.

The Beckers, a typically American family, were instrumental in giving Commission officials definite information on the effect the Maine exhibit has on Fair visitors.

"We wandered around the Fair grounds for two days and were much impressed with all we saw. However, the futuristic motif of the buildings and exhibits soon lost its novelty. It was only when we saw the Maine exhibit which impressed us as being simple and natural that we decided to see the state itself," Becker said.

He was particularly impressed, he said, with "the friendliness" of the attendants of the state's exhibit.

"They made us feel at home and instilled in us a desire to visit a state where people are so friendly," Becker declared.

After receiving late fishing information he chose the Belgrade Lake region for his first encounter with Maine salmon and said he would probably visit other sections as well before he goes home.

Although the Becker family were the first visitors that could be definitely attributed to Maine's participation in the Fair, officials were convinced that many had come here but had remained unidentified with the project.

It was pointed out that thus far relatively few Fair patrons were other than New Yorkers as the influx of out of state visitors is not expected until the beginning of the vacation season. Attendants at the

LOCAL LEGION AUXILIARY TO DISTRIBUTE POPPIES MAY 27

Poppy Day will be observed throughout the United States on Saturday, May 27, with the wearing of memorial poppies in honor of the World War dead, Mrs. Milo McAllister, President of the George A. Mundt Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, has announced. The observance will be led by the Auxiliary women who will distribute poppies on the streets during the day.

More than eleven million of the little red memorial flowers have been made by disabled World War veterans working in government hospitals and in poppy workrooms maintained by the Auxiliary. These flowers are crepe paper replicas of the poppies which grew on the World War battlefields and among which the dead and wounded fell. They are recognized throughout the English-speaking world as the memorial flower for those who fell in defense of democracy.

Plans for the local observance of Poppy Day are being completed by George A. Mundt Auxiliary Unit under the leadership of Mrs. Mabel O'Brien, Unit Poppy chairman, aided by a large committee. Volunteer workers from the Unit will offer poppies on the streets all day and will receive contributions for the Legion and Auxiliary welfare and relief work among the disabled veterans and dependent families of veterans.

Poppies for distribution here have been ordered from the Soldiers' Hospital in Togus, where disabled veterans have been given employment through the winter and spring making the little flowers. They are expected to be worn more generally than ever before on Poppy Day this year.

We will have an opportunity, too, to help those who sacrificed health and strength in the conflict, their families and the families of those who have died. Our contributions for our poppies will help lighten the burden for those still paying the cost of democracy's victory in suffering and privation.

A poppy on our coat on Poppy Day will mean that we honor the dead who fell for democracy and that we are adding the living who save health and strength in patriotic service to America.

The state's exhibit have been marking time thus far by inducing Manhattanites to choose Maine as a vacation spot this year and have reported "highly satisfactory" results.

Cutting Silhouettes Is Art Dating Back to 1709

The magic art of the silhouettist is given us in the shades of men, women and children of the long ago. They form a shadow procession interesting for the quaint costumes and for the delicate appeal of the pictured profiles of the subjects.

The name given these shades, as they were first called, was taken from that of Etienne de Silhouette, 1709-1767, who lived in France and was one of the first to practice the art of shadow cutting. He was a French economist, relates Alice R. Rollins in the Los Angeles Times, whose ideas of economy did not appeal to the popular taste, and a paper picture did not accord with the spendthrift splendor of the French Court circle.

As a consequence, the poor, mean art, as it was then considered flourished but a short time. It was not until 1826, when another Frenchman, Edouart, introduced the name which is in general use for shadow pictures.

The fashion for paper portrait cutting in Europe became widespread as early as 1780. The color artists at Sevres and other porcelain factories were painting black silhouettes on cups, saucers and mugs. But it was in England that the art became supreme.

Freehand cutting had been done at an early period but it was not until August Edouart began his series of portraits that the art became famous.

Nicknames Given Kings; 'Charles' Were in Lead

Not even kings are immune from nicknames, and history provides many examples—unkind as well as flattering. The various Kings Charles, especially of France, seem to have been particularly liable, and lead the way in the royal nickname parade, says Pearson's London Weekly.

There was Charles the Bald, son of the second wife of Louis the Kind; Charles the Simple, son of Louis the Stammerer; Charles the Handsome, son of Philip the Handsome; and Charles the Wise, who was fond of books, rather a rare distinction in his day. He inherited the library of 20 volumes which had satisfied the literary yearnings of his father, but left, at his death in 1380, some 800, about all there were then. Then there was Charles the Well-Beloved, who fell ill from a magic spell and was treated by wizards instead of doctors; Charles the Victorious, who recaptured nearly all his kingdom from the English; Charles the Courteous, who was so polite to his servants that two fell dead on hearing of his death.

Charles the Fat was king of Swabia and Italy. Charles the Bad misgoverned Navarre. Charles the Bold reigned over Burgundy, and Charles the Warrior over Savoy.

Name Bartholomew Means A 'Son of the Furrows'

The name Bartholomew in its various spellings is of Hebrew origin and has the picturesque meaning "son of the furrows," writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, thus fitting a farmer or plowman. But many of its bearers have plowed the waves rather than the fields. Less popular now than in the past when its bearers did great deeds, it is frequently heard as a surname.

St. Bartholomew was one of the 12 apostles, supposed to be the same one who is called Nathanael.

Bartholomew Diaz (d. 1500), Portuguese navigator, discovered the Cape of Good Hope in finding his way around Africa.

Bartholomeo Columbus (d. 1514), was a brother and co-worker of Christopher and a noted cartographer. Sailing to America in 1494, he came just in time to save his brother from the Spaniards and Indians. He founded the town of San Domingo. Bartholome de Las Casas (d. 1566), sailed with his father on the third voyage of Columbus and later in life became a bishop in Mexico, where he was called the apostle to the Indians.

Fra Bartholomeo (d. 1517) was a great Italian painter, many of whose works are in the Pitti palace in Florence.

Bartholomew Gosnold (d. 1607), English navigator, was one of the earliest explorers of New England. In 1602, with a party of colonists, he landed on the coast of Maine, then sailed south and discovered and named Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and Elizabeth Island. In 1606 Gosnold was one of the settlers of Jamestown. Bartholome Fuentes, Portuguese, was said to have discovered the Northwest passage in 1640.

Bartholome Murillo (d. 1682), Spanish painter, was one of the great artists of all time.

GOULD 14-NORWAY 4

Goold annexed their fourth straight baseball game by taking a return league game from Norway. It looked as though it was going to be another tight struggle like the 9-8 ten-inning game at Norway when both teams scored twice in the first and then remained tied up until the fifth when Norway added two to their score and Goold came back to score three times taking a 5-4 lead. From here on they added to their lead each time at bat.

The team continued to hit the ball hard and only the soft condition of the outfield prevented more extra base hits.
Brooks pitched a masterful game allowing only five hits. In six different innings he faced only three men and was in trouble only twice and both times chiefly through in field errors. Brown at short made several fine stops on hard-hit balls and Tucker made a nice throw from the outfield to force a runner at third. Smith had the misfortune to turn his ankle in the pre-game practice and was unable to take his regular place in the line-up. Gavel stepped into the breach and played good ball although he dropped two balls trying to tag runners after leaving the base on bad throws.

The team travels to Fryeburg Monday for a game then returns to play Gorham and Fryeburg on Wednesday and Saturday respectively.
